Warren County Division of Aging & Disability Services

The Division of Aging & Disability Services (Division) is the County's lead agency and administrator of Federal, State, and Local funds earmarked to assist Warren County's older adults and their caregivers. The Division operates under the Warren County Department of Human Services. Our services are provided directly or through contracts with other partner agencies. Services are coordinated through our professional staff and referrals to contracted partner agencies occur through our Division.

What We Do

ADRC provides information and assistance to older persons, adults with physical disabilities and caregivers. Through a comprehensive intake and screen for community services, our division staff can assist in identifying needs and determining the best options for assistance, and provide services.

The Division of Aging & Disability Services' philosophy upholds the rights of the county's older adults (60 years and above) to age with dignity, maximum health, independence, well being, and the ability to make their own life choices.
